

LIBRARY FOR SOLDIERS

Troops Here Are Welcome To Use Lawrence Library

The Lawrence public library is open to the soldiers stationed in Lawrence just as it is open to everyone else in the city. The soldier boys who have an idle hour and care to read will be welcome to use the books or magazines in the public library. Mrs. Beatty, librarian, has asked that the soldiers be informed that they may use the reading material at any time.

In the basement of the library are many old books which have been discarded from the stacks for one reason or another. These books may be used by the soldiers for short periods or it would be possible for the company commanders to take a few of these books to the armories for the use of the soldiers. The local library will co-operate with the commanders in securing reading material for soldiers.
