Stugard Moody Campbell Greenleaf Brown

President.....	Stuart Campbell
Vice President.....	LaVerne Stugard
Secretary.....	Eleanor Brown
Treasurer.....	Robert Moody
Budget Reporter.....	Frances Greenleaf

Now it came about in the year of nineteen hundred eighteen that there entered into the History of Lawrence High School the members of the class of twenty-two. And they sought much learning in this fertile Land of Knowledge.

And they were received into this rich Land with huge joy and welcome for they were the Freshies destined to be paddled. And they bided their time 'till in their turn they would mete out punishment to other Freshies.

And lo! a little child led them through their first year of vicissitudes. And the teachers wondered at them and they were held in amaze by the upperclassmen, for their precociousness.

Thru three long years they lingered in the Land of Knowledge, learning much of many subjects; and they called themselves the wisest of all Juniors.

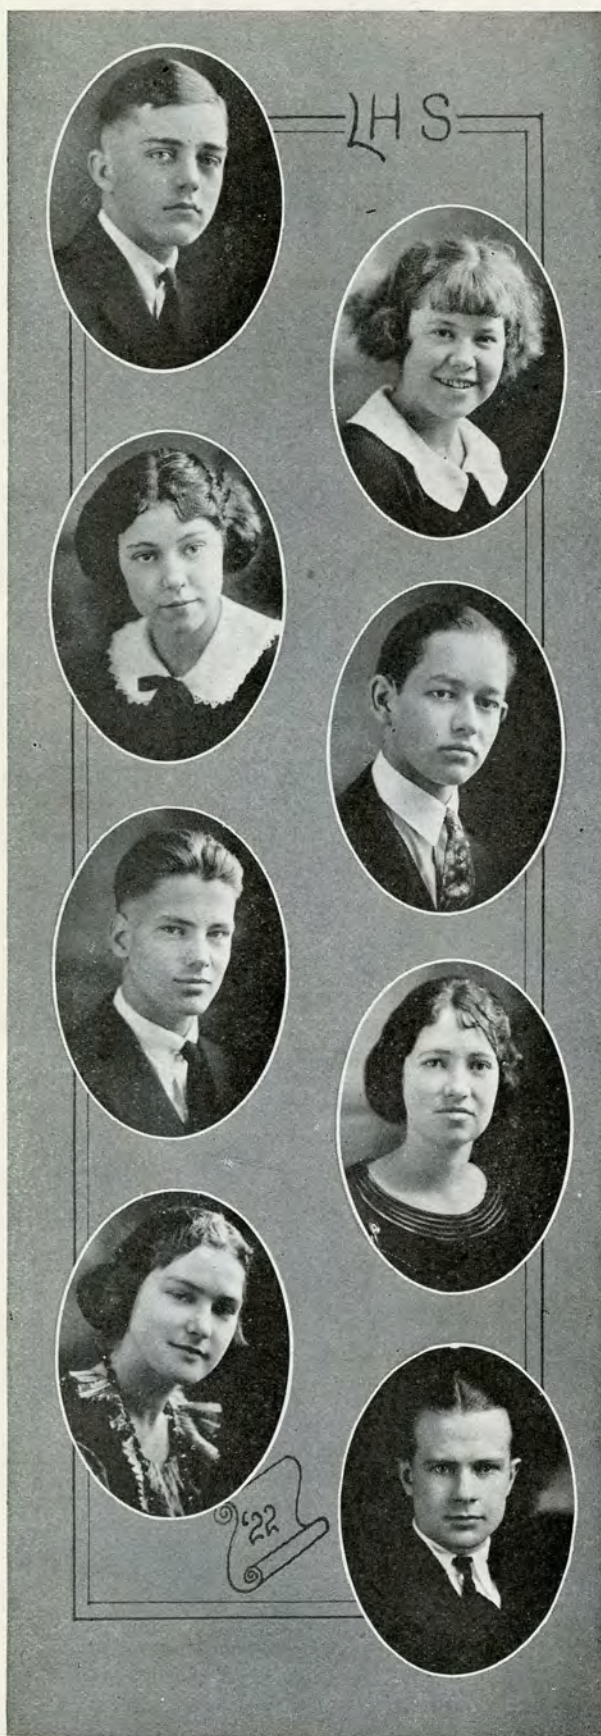

And in their midst rose up mighty athletes, who did go forth to mighty struggles on the gridiron and in basketball and they were victorious.

And so it came to pass that they stood at the end of four years at the mouth of the River of Knowledge with the memory of their brilliant achievements behind them. The Prom, The Senior Play, The Senior Breakfast, Commencement where the Senior girls were arrayed in all their glory even as the lilies of the field, all had passed.

And all other classes bowed down before them for they were truly great. So they went forth ever seeking fresh knowledge from the great teachers Life and Experience.

The Red and Black

The Annual Staff and Advisors for the Red & Black publication of 1922, were chosen soon after the opening of the fall term. Early in October the first meeting was held for the purpose of defining the duties of the Staff members and of deciding upon a definite outline for publication. The Staff editors then set earnestly to work gathering their materials, and various meetings were held to check up on the work.

By March, all the materials for the Engravers had been sent and a greater portion of the write-ups had been received at the office.

At this period the sale of the book was becoming a preeminent question and an intensive campaign was begun in a general assembly, April 3, and continued throughout the school term.

Words cannot express the gratitude of the Staff to the advisors. Mrs. Barrett, Mr. Speer, and Coach Max Klein for their consistent aid, and advice and their earnestness in making the book a success.

We have tried to give the school a book that will justly do it credit. We have been open to suggestions at all times. We have done our best.

The Staff extends its sincere gratitude to Registrar George O. Foster, Holland Wheeler, and Elden Rynerson, and to those who have contributed in any way toward making the issue successful. We hope it pleases you.

History of the Class of 1922

In the year of nineteen eighteen,
 In the merry month September,
 With their golden ringlets flying,
 With their round eyes full of wonder,
 Asking, "Which room is our class room?"
 Came a jolly class of freshmen,
 Starting toward their graduation.
 Other classes gazed in wonder
 E'en the teachers stared dumfounded
 And the knowledge was a marvel
 "Mong those little freshman people.
 Sure of good times they had plenty
 With their picnics and their parties,
 In this year they donned their class pins
 E'n an orphan they adopted.
 Boosted for a needed high school
 And in campaigns took much interest,
 With John Henry as their leader,
 Their beginning was most wondrous.

In September nineteen nineteen
 Again they hastened on their journey
 To successful graduation.
 Charming little Sophomores were they
 Mighty students! Jolly comrades!
 And among these worthy sophomores,
 Champion athletes were discovered
 Ones like "Testie," Joel and Perkins.
 After difficulties many
 'Caused by "flu" and coal shortage
 In Eagles hall they held a party
 Did these enterprising sophomores.
 In every way that one can mention
 Far surpassing other classes.

Next this class enrolled as juniors,
 What a wond'rous crowd of juniors!
 With their president Dolph Simons
 The cheerleader for the school,
 Showed the class had pep aplenty.
 And in football Captain "Testie"
 As a star will be remembered.
 Editor and newshounds had they
 On the Budget staff so grand,
 A box supper was a feature
 Of what this splendid class can do,
 But the Banquet for the seniors
 Given by the jolly juniors
 Far surpassed all other grandeurs
 Ever staged in L. H. S.
 Decoration, eats, and program
 Showed the management and spirit
 Of that excellent class of juniors.

Now as stately, glorious seniors
 They attended the highest honor
 Stuart Campbell chosen leader
 Made this year a year of glory.
 Hundred fifty-four in number
 More than any class of seniors
 That had e'er been graduated.
 "Morawetz," "Levi," "Captain Testie,"
 Shown and starred in athletics.
 In their lessons shown so brightly
 Eight "studs" on the roll of honor.
 In activities had much spirit
 In dramatics gained distinction.
 Always having something social
 Breakfast, picnics and parties.
 Class day program showed the merit
 And the talent of the seniors.
 When commencement day was reached
 Then their high days were ended.
 Won't the lower classes miss them?
 Won't the faculty remember
 Class of twenty-two with pleasure
 As one of the noblest classes
 That has e'er been graduated?

KATHERINE KLEIN.

Class Will

We, the Senior Class of Lawrence High School, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred twenty-two, being in sound mind and body, do hereby bequeath, after payment of all just debts and funeral expenses, the following properties; to-wit:

First: To Mary Engel, in the hope that they will help to swell the goodly number of her victims, we bequeath, with all the rights and privileges pertaining thereunto, Bobbie Brown's dimples.

Second: We leave to George Cady, in order to make him more than ever beloved by the teachers, Francis Baty's vocabulary.

Third: In the hope of getting rid of it we will George Carey's voice to Margaret Posey.

Fourth: Believing that she needs and deserves it more than the present owner thereof, we leave John Henry's immense self satisfaction to Hazel Allen.

Fifth: Our great pep and boundless enthusiasm for school enterprises we will to the Junior Class, in the hope that it will make fitting and proper use of these, our most valuable heritages.

Sixth: To the last mentioned class we leave also our hopes of occupying the exalted position of the first class to graduate from the Liberty Memorial High School.

Seventh: To George Mackie we will any good permits we may have left behind.

Eighth: To Scoop Wellman we leave Bill Rice's wit.

Ninth: All the musical talent we can collect we bestow on Madame B. Sharp.

Tenth: Thomas Law leaves his pep and enthusiasm in all high school activities and parties to Ed Young.

Eleventh: To the Posey twins and the Gaunt twins we bequeath the places held by the Brown twins and the Millikin twins.

Twelfth: To Gertrude Coolidge we leave Katheryn Conley's talent for making herself popular with the boys.

Thirteenth: We bequeath Margaret Phillips' dramatic talent to Mary Sisson and Ernestine Yates, the only Junior girls now in the Footlighters.

Fourteenth: To Leland Barrows we will Thelma Roach's position in the Debating Club.

Sixteenth: Any property of the third year French class which may have been left behind we bestow on Margery Blackwelder.

Seventeenth: To Wendell McKeever we bequeath Levy Crites' estimation of himself.

Eighteenth: The mischievous propensities of some of our members we will to Rollin Posey, in the belief that a little more will do no harm.

Nineteenth: In behalf of Bob Laptad we will all the filling stations in Lawrence, to use as he thinks fit.

Twentieth: We leave the future prospects of the girls' basket ball team to Margaret Kennedy, hoping it will never be defeated.

Twenty-first: To all future generations we will our love for Pap and L. H. S.

Given under our hand and seal this Twenty-Eighth day of March, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred twenty-two.

Senior Class.

An essay on school should begin with a humorous story of Johnny and Teacher—but then such stories are so evident. Suppose we start by giving a definition of school. School is—now here we are—School is a large (preferably red (usually) brick (always) building where Knowledge is served in large portions to boys who continually drop marbles and girls who continually pass notes. But no—school is not only this. Lift your vision and see the High School. There is the place where Romance holds sway.

Now we are getting somewhere—High School is the place where James finds his True Love—The Only Girl. Here Life's Great Battles are Won—Lost—where the Heights of Ecstasy and the Depths of Despair are scaled and probed to their uttermost Limits. Many is the time when you—your dearest friend—well—even I myself have cut short breakfast or dinner in order to have a few blissful moments with only Ourselves in a dark corridor which idly serves to cover the blushing cheeks and the large and unaccountably awkward hands and feet of some poor stricken boy. Calf Love—you give a little sniff and turn away—but stop a moment—are you so old that you have forgotten the First Girl? Oh yes, you say, one of the prettiest girls—golden hair—beautiful blue eyes and the way she had of turning her head—and yet you say—Calf Love. But mine was different, she was——.

SOPHISTICATED SENIOR.

Class Prophecy

Dear Chloetta:—

You are certainly getting behind the times since you moved to Mars. You say you don't know what has become of any of our L. H. S. classmates. I've been gathering information for you and I think I can tell you something about every one of them. It's a wonder, tho, that you haven't heard about Eleanor Brown. When Bobby married the first Martian lady to come here Eleanor saw a last chance, so she persuaded Arthur Silverthorn to take her to Mars. The publicity resulting from this so aroused John Henry's jealousy that he has taken up astronomy under the great star gazer, Harriet Gilbert, in the hope of winning like attention.

Talk about attention! The member of our class who is getting the most of it is Anna Yahn. She's making a big hit in society. Glen Simmonds made his everlasting fortune by interviewing her and writing the story of her life in installments for the New York Times, the editor of which is Blanche Young. It is mainly thru Anna's wearing them that Fedalma Bunker's cockle burr necklaces have won such popularity. They seem to have entirely eclipsed Billie Burke's moon grass girdles.

Paul Hunzicker has started a new hotel, the largest in the United States. Edna Brinkman is his head chef and Harold Burke is becoming so enamoured of her cooking that his wife, Marguerite Bower, is afraid he will leave her. She should worry, for she has such a pull with Judge Forney that he will be sure to do anything she wants him to unless Hazel D. Forney gets jealous.

Majel Anderson has become enormously wealthy. I hear she owns as many as three of Mildred Longanecker's vases made of human hair. Mildred's main sources of supply are: Ethel Anderson, Frances Kruse, Louise Albert, and Edna Loesch.

Parmelia Johnson has a job cleaning the star dust off the wings of Ruth Johnson's airplanes. She sells it to Madame Reeves, who uses it to trim hats.

Rose F. Dews has become such a famous farmer that her initials are always placed on any mail intended for a farmer.

The most pitiful thing is George Carey. Wilford Hunsinger found him wandering thru the streets, repeating in a dazed way, "twenty miles from water and forty miles from land  twenty miles from water and forty miles from land " He was taken to Jessie Edmondson, the famous hickory nut expert, who sent him to Delpha Neal's home for incurables. They say his condition was caused by Blanche Smith's seventy-ninth refusal; but Blanche goes on as before and fights Laura Glidden's uplift work as hard as ever.

Mahlon Ball has established a synthetic jelly fish factory, with Fred Sauer as manager.

Elmer Pine is in charge of the painting squad for Scott Bros. Trans-Pacific bridge.

Mainly thru the splendid efforts of Mary Jayne Dyer and Harold Roe, Letha Dunham won by a landslide the presidential election of the United States of Central America.

Anna Dorothy Lester has just returned from a trip to Afghanistan, where she sold three tons of Dorothy Swank's life prolonger to Hester Thompson, the minister of pilotless airplanes.

Katherine Klein has developed a marvelous soprano voice. She can go three whole octaves higher than even Esther Ott can. She uses Carrol Miller's new invention and utilizes the music of the spheres as an accompaniment.

Of course you must have heard of the recent discovery that the earth has four poles; but evidently you didn't know that Thelma Roach was the one who discovered it. An exploring party, headed by Charles Jeffries and Mary Nottingham, has at last reached the west pole.

Wilbert Kunkel has invented a way to use one's own hair for a parachute. He says Eileen MacDonald was his inspiration.

The two celebrated linguists, Betty Goldsmith and Bertha Weidman, have gone into partnership. The two of them together can speak all the languages in the world except Orval Crites' new Esperanto. They say it would be impossible to learn that.

Justin Hill is being severely censured by Lee Gregg, president of the Censors of Public Morals, because he was so immodest as to blow his nose in public.

When I stopped at Dorothy Griffith's book store the other day I saw that the latest publication was Francis Baty's "Antidisestablishmentairianism vs. Antitransubstantiationism," published by Getker and Hartig.

Hazel Boland's wonderful wink won her a leading place in Antoine Wilmett's 1941 follies.

Evelyn Garvin is a professional orphan placer. Her latest achievement is placing with Thoro Hamm and Edna Underwood the two children of Dorothy Fuller and Clarence Stewart, whose parents were kidnapped while riding in Milo Fuller's sub-terra.

Weston Caine and Katherine Conley are starring in Margaret O'Donnell's revised version of "Taming of the Shrew," which was suggested by her affair with Leo Piper.

Earl Ozias has introduced in the House a bill to prohibit chewing gum.

Aymee Gould is putting on a big campaign for simplified spelling. Mable Longanecker is opposing these measures because she is afraid the paper market will fall off if they go thru. You see, she owns controlling interest in the factory where Lynos Dugan's liquid air process paper is made.

Lloyd Williams is a wonderful nonsense writer. He keeps Nina Anderson busy composing music for his verses. They are published by Genevieve Carter.

RED AND BLACK

Norma Curd is having wonderful success selling the roots of Lucile DeWoody's mulberry bearing orchids.

They say it was Pearl Allen's cigarettes which caused Tom Law to be defeated when he came up against Elmer Broat's team in the World Series.

Josephine Newby is shocking the natives with her cosmetic shop. Her best customer is Lloyd Young.

I saw Justus Fugate the other day. Out of pure pity Risdon Godlove has given him a position as free verse writer for "The Ladies' Home Journal."

Holland Wheeler has a job training pompadors for the men's chorus in Lee Rogers' vaudeville, which stars the famous Head-Dancers, Margaret Phillips and Monterey Breaky.

Elden Rynerson is the greatest genius of the age. He has invented a way to eat your cake and have it too. Its great drawback is that it applies only to cake. Edna Underwood is working on a variation for cookies.

Blanche Weed tells me she has applied for admittance to Frances Greenleaf's home for retired vamps; but had to be content with being placed on the waiting list. Some of the inmates of the home are Helen Myers, Jo Manter, and Frances Hirsch. Lorena Mack was offered a place, but she scorned to consider herself retired. Chesley Posey is planning to establish a branch for men.

Vivian Dunkle is teaching history in L. H. S. and Edith Ward, superintendent of schools, says Vivian is trying to be as much like Miss Wood as is possible.

Ruth Millikin is president of the Society for the Prevention of Duplication. Margaret Norris is secretary. In accordance with the principles of the society, which Secretary of the Interior Irma Schaaake heartily upholds, Frances Milliken has been banished to Mexico where she is trying to revive border warfare.

Dora Eberwein has established a Curiosity Shop, that is, a shop where one's curiosity may be satisfied. Loraine McCall, chief assistant, says the shop would be nothing without Bill Rice's patronage.

You would never recognize Reba Hornby, she has become so ah-er-corpulent. She is attending Ossie Bradley's reducing school.

Mary Leone Isaacs is Mayor of Lawrence. Glen Wynn is commissioner of finance and Georgia Uttinger is the leading lawyer in the city.

Martha Lowman and Marie Preston are sheriffs in the Fiji Islands.

Bessie Chastain makes the most delicious seaweed pies I ever tasted. She is making a fortune from them, partly because of Chester Hemphill's being so efficient as her publicity agent.

I believe the class has only one radical reformer. Bob Moody has been convicted of the attempted assassination of Alice Tarcy, our ambassador to Borneo.

Will Hamilton is a missionary to New England.

Charles Kohler is making an interesting study of the mentality of Californiacs.

Ursla Draper is a star in Harold Emmick's moving statue shows, successors to moving pictures.

Ruth Edgar and Norah Calvert are trying to start a society for the promotion of spinsterhood.

Francis Morawetz and Eugene Perkins are arguing that since the girls have kimona parades after the games the boys should be allowed to return to the antiquated custom of night shirt, or more properly pajama, parades, but I hardly think Chancellor Stugard will agree.

Irma McCollough and Russell Petefish are running a wild cat farm in Wyoming.

Mary Jane Melton has a job posing for Harold Weber's futurist portraits.

Anna Mae Pontius is a snake charmer with Robinson and Testerman, successors to Barnum and Bailey.

Jesse Sweezer used to be Madge Garrett's man of all work; but he became so voluble that she was forced to discharge him. He has since been unable to find work, though he has had Ernest Seidel's employment agency on the job for months. He is afraid he will have to ask for a place in Marguerite Laptad's home for idle men, though he dreads it, on account of the bad company there.

Mary Belle Jones has a whale fishery. The other day she caught the largest whale ever seen. As it was pulled up on the beach it opened its mouth and out walked Stu Campbell. He has since been publishing in Harper's Magazine (editor, Gladys Bowman) a series of photographs of the interior of a whale, taken with one of James Rouce's repeating flashlight cartridges.

Kitty Cables has been holding one of these "handsomest man contests." Edward Spencer won although Joel Chambers was a close second.

Margaret Jenkins is still giving readings in Bertha Thomas' chautauqua; but her ranks of admirers have become much thinner, for she has learned no new readings for seventeen years.

Frances Koch and Frances Moore are touring the country in a new production, entitled "The Heavenly Twins."

I am afraid I have already exceeded Isis McGuffey's weight limit for letters to be sent by the inter-planet mail, and will have to send this as a package.

Yours 'til the next time,
Catherine E. Hood
